Today's communication:

Dear Parents and Carers,

While I would like to take the time to wish all our mothers and grandmothers a happy Mother's Day. This is certainly going to be a most unusual one and one we will never forget! However, I hope you get lots of calls and are able to engage with your family remotely.

Our second assembly was led by Ivy D of 6E and Will S of 6D and they both did a fabulous job. Congratulations to our award winners that you will be able to watch. Also all the fabulous work that is being shared. The link is: <https://www.wevideo.com/view/1692523975>

We hope you have enjoyed well-being day and we have seen some amazing structures and creations to celebrate Lego Masters day. These are all on our school Official Facebook page.

It will be interesting to see what announcements are made on Monday as the government begins to consider where to next. I fully realise how difficult this time has been and congratulate you all on your wonderful efforts to keep your children engaged. I sincerely thank you on their behalf. I also realise that the novelty may be beginning to wear off for some of the children. Children are social beings and love being with each other. So, while we remain in this state, the best way is to engage is in the google meetings with the teacher and their friends. Also, remember that it ok if some days are not as productive as other days; that is a natural way for things to be. Just keep reading, keep exercising and keep well-being on the agenda daily. If you can encourage a minimum of three activities a day, you are doing well!

We will keep you updated as any information comes to hand. Remember we are all doing the same thing and have the same challenges. Stay the course so we can all keep safe.

Have a wonderful weekend and send special wishes to all those very important family members: the mums!

Best wishes,

Julie Gleeson.
